Hello

I have a question on whether course entry requirements for your courses in STEM subjects adequately and clearly reflect the nature of the academic course content, level of complexity of said course content, and the course examinations.

If entry requirements, are set at a particular level, does this mean that all three elements above- the academic course content, level of complexity of said course content, and the course examinations, are designed to be accessible to the student cohort entering said course (which is why the requirements are what they are).

Does this mean that the level of a typical examination question is designed to be answerable by the students with the specified grades you ask for, i.e in other words the average question is targeted at a set level of ability.

Many thanks and I look forward to hearing from you soon

Aryan

Hello

I need clarification regarding my original question to you. For your science degree programs, do the entry requirements adequately and clearly reflect the level of knowledge and understanding which you would require to complete the program successfully and do the entry requirements reflect the level of difficulty that the examination questions in the aforementioned courses are set at?

I need these questions answered with immediate effect.

Many thanks

Aryan
